LWN.net Group Subscriptions

Your business depends on Linux and open source. You, and your employees, really need to keep up with the latest developments. LWN.net, the premier news and information source for the free and open-source software (FOSS) community, is the publication your employees need to stay informed.

We have been providing in-depth coverage of vital Linux and open-source topics since 1998. We cover Linux kernel development, free-software development tools, Linux distributions, programming languages such as C, Python, Rust, legal and licensing issues, and much more.

Our editorial staff has more than 60 years of combined experience covering, and participating in, the Linux and open-source communities. We do the research, attend events, monitor mailing lists and other development discussion forums, and then distill all of that into long-form articles that save time and provide context.

LWN.net is a rarity in tech publishing: we are a subscriber-driven publication that respects its readers and their privacy. We do not sell reader data in any form, or publish any form of advertiser-contributed content. Our agenda is clear: to be an independent and intelligent publication that stands out by serving its readers.

Why should my business subscribe?

No doubt some of your employees are already LWN readers, and others in your organization are certain to find a subscription valuable. It is the professional journal for open source and essential for continuous learning. Your competitors are likely subscribing, too: our current subscribers include more than 100 organizations, from small companies to the Fortune 100.
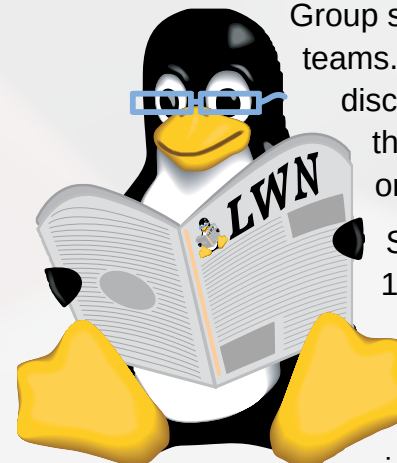

No company has an unlimited travel budget for events—your group subscription helps ensure that your team gets a front-row view to important talks and developer conversations. LWN.net provides in-depth coverage of events like the Linux Plumbers Conference, the Kernel Maintainers Summit, PyCon US, Open Source Summit, and many others.

Consider a group subscription to LWN, to ensure your team always has timely access to important coverage.

Benefits include

➜ LWN.net premium content the moment it is published.
➜ Ability to receive LWN.net's Daily and Daily Headlines email newsletters.
➜ Access to the LWN kernel source database, which provides extensive details about Linux kernel development and release history since 2005.
➜ Customization of the site appearance and the ability to turn off all ads.
➜ Create subscriber links to share premium content with others.
➜ Ability to download LWN articles and weekly editions as EPUB ebooks.

How subscriptions work

Group subscriptions are available for small and large teams. Our packages start at 10 users, with a significant discount over individual subscriptions while providing the same benefits, and can grow to fit any size organization.

Subscription bundles start at only $840 per year for 10 users, and scale up to suit any size organization.

Starting at only $7 a subscriber, per month, it's an inexpensive professional-development investment that can yield major benefits for your employees and your organization.

Have questions? Need more information? Drop us a line at subs@lwn.net and we'll reply right away. And don't worry—sales people are not standing by. All of our operations are handled by LWN's editors, so you never have to worry about recurring sales emails or hard-sell tactics. We're here to help, without any pressure.

Contact us: subs@lwn.net
Learn more: https://lwn.net/groups